Iron Man 3 is a 2013 American superhero film featuring the Marvel Comics character Iron Man, produced by Walt Disney Pictures and Marvel Studios and distributed by Walt Disney Studios Motion Pictures. It is the sequel to 2008's Iron Man and 2010's Iron Man 2, and the seventh installment in the Marvel Cinematic Universe. In this film Tony Stark (played by Robert Downey Jr.) must confront terrorist Ivan Vanko (played by Mickey Rourke), who builds his own arc reactor powered armor as revenge against Stark for not having saved his father from palladium poisoning years earlier. Development of Iron Man 3 began with a November 2008 announcement that a film sequel was in the works. In July 2011, Downey signed a new five-film contract with Marvel Studios that includes a role in the studio's next two release. In May 2012, it was announced that Jon Favreau would direct and cowriter for the film. In February 2013, Favreau said he had begun work on the script for the film. In May 2013, Marvel announced that Shane Black would write and direct Iron Man 3 as his first live-action film after many years of writing for various comic book shows and films including Predator 2, The Last Starfighter and The A-Team. Black is also known for co-writing the Shane Black film Kiss Kiss Bang Bang (with Downey's Iron Man dialogue in mind). Black was hired in June to direct Iron Man 3, with Drew Pearce hired in September 2012 to write the script. The film's title was announced in October along with Downey's casting; it is derived from a dialogue between Tony Stark and his therapist (played by James Badge Dale) in which Stark says, "I call it the Iron Man suit, not... suit 'a' armor." Filming began on March 12, 2013 at the United States International Trade & Convention Center in downtown Miami, Florida. Principal photography also took place in North Carolina, Tennessee and California. "Avengers: Age of Ultron" was released in IMAX on April 23, 2015. In the Middle East, Tony Stark is being fitted with a new armor by his A.I. J.A.X at his Malibu home when he is attacked by Ivan Vanko who has been fitted with a similar armor created from Stark's arc reactor technology that absorbs all electricity into it causing it to glow. Vanko is revealed to be the son of Anton Vanko who was one of the scientists who worked on the arc reactor design and he tells Stark that his father was killed by Obadiah Stane. Vanko states that he intends to seek retribution for his father's death by destroying Stark while wearing a similar arc reactor powered armor while Tony tries to stop him while being attacked by his robotic flying drones. Meanwhile, Nick Fury and Director of S.H.I.E.L.D.. Phil Coulson arrive at a meeting with other world leaders including former S.H.I.E.L.D director Jeffrey Mace and other world leaders where they discuss Loki attacking other S.H.I.E.
